

From left:
Images from
Namsa Leuba's
Khopsan series

NEW YORK

Yvette Mutumba and Julia Grosse, founders of the online magazine Contemporary And, are the first female curators of Armory Focus, a six-year-old initiative of New York art fair the Armory Show (March 3 to 6). Each year's program highlights a particular region. This year's, titled African Perspectives, will explore the breadth of African voices from around the world, including new work by Swiss-Guinean photographer Namsa Leuba, who, as Mutumba says, "places aesthetics from the fashion world in harmonious juxtaposition with a stereotypical view of what 'tribal' costumes look like."